You make two bundt cakes (a pumpkin, or spice or a carrot cake for the color and flavor) and put one on top of the other one (the first one goes on the plate upside down) with the two bottoms together in the center.)

Then you get a flat bottom ice cream cone and can frost that green sticking it into the cake top center. I made this cake for an October birthday but I didn't want to deal with frosting the cone so I got one of the precolored green cones you can buy at most supermarkets for 99 cents for a 12 pack.

I tilted the cone just a bit to make it look more natural. After you insert the cone you frost the cakes orange. If you frost with a downward stroke it makes more of the ribbed effect a regular pumpkin would have.
